

Morningside University Nylen School of Nursing and Health Science

Licensure Disclosure and State Authorization Information

The Morningside University Nylen School of Nursing and Health Science has investigated the general requirements for licensure in each state and territory. Morningside University Nylen School of Nursing and Health Science baccalaureate and graduate program have full approval from the Iowa Board of Nursing. See state information listed below to see if Morningside University Nylen School of Nursing and Health Science is authorized to award a degree to an online student residing in another state and if your degree requirements meet the state's expectation for licensure. If you relocate during the program to another state, it may impact whether you can continue in the program and meet eligibility requirements. If you are considering relocating, you should contact the Graduate Nursing office at GradNurs@morningside.edu

Bachelor of Science in Nursing

The BSN program prepares students to sit for the national NCLEX-RN examination for licensure to become a Registered Nurse (RN). The RN-BSN does not lead to any type of licensure, as students are already licensed. To the best of our knowledge the educational requirements for Morningside University Nylen School of Nursing and Health Science Bachelor of Science in Nursing substantially meet the same basic academic conditions for licensure in all 50 states. Some states have specific requirements beyond these basic academic conditions for licensure.

Advanced Practice Nursing Roles

Graduates from our APRN programs (Family Primary Care Nursing Practitioner, Adult Gerontology Primary Care Nurse Practitioner, and Adult Gerontology Acute Care Nurse Practitioner) prepares students for national certification by an associated certifying body (American Nurse Credentialing Center, ANCC or American Association of Nurse Practitioners, AANP). National certification is an expectation for practice nationwide. APRN authorization varies from state-to-state with some states awarding APRN licenses, some providing APRN endorsements on a nurse's RN licenses, or other systems which have been designated by the state's Board of Nursing. Students are encouraged to also contact the Board of Nursing in the state they wish to practice in determining additional practice information.

State licensure requirements may change, and states may have conditions for licensure in addition to educational requirements. For additional information, contact the Graduate Nursing program at GradNurs@morningside.edu. Licensure information is reviewed and updated on this site in May of each year. Prospective students will be informed through our website and applicants will be notified upon receipt of application of current licensure fulfillment status and state authorization. Updated annually, the BSN, MSN, DNP, and Post-Graduate Certificate program meet the following state requirements (see table below and contact information for state boards).

State Licensure Approval and State Authorization for Enrollment

Indicates that the Nylen School of Nursing and Health Science meets the state's licensure requirements. However, students who reside in that state are not eligible for enrollment due to the state's practicum requirements. If the student holds additional residency in another state that is approved, they will be eligible for enrollment.
